What is Delta 9 THC And How Is It Legal In The U.S.?

What is Delta 9 THC And How Is It Legal In The U.S.?

The 2018 Farm Bill legalized the production and sale of industrial hemp and hemp-derived products in the United States, including those containing delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) at a concentration of no more than 0.3% on a dry weight basis. This means that hemp products, including those containing delta-9-THC below the legal limit, are no longer considered controlled substances under federal law.

UFOREK tests all products at a 3rd Party Lab for safety, potency and compliance.

Hemp D-9 THC Promotes Pain Relief

Pain relief is one of the top benefits of Hemp CBD + Delta 9 THC

More than 176 Million people in the U.S. live with chronic pain. Many of these individuals suffer from neuropathic pain or nerve-related pain. Even an FDA-approved trial confirmed THC's effectiveness for pain relief.

Hemp D-9 Provides Inflammation Relief (Anti-inflammatory)

Chronic inflammation is considered a major risk factor for all different kinds of diseases.

Source suggests that Delta 9 THC and CBD's anti-inflammatory properties may be beneficial for rheumatoid arthritis, as it affects certain cell viability. It may also have a synergetic effect on rheumatoid arthritis medication.

A 2020 review Trusted Source suggests that Delta 9 THC and CBD's properties can provide anti-oxidative effects because of CBD's specific molecular structure. Therefore, it may have anti-inflammatory benefits for conditions that can result from oxidative stress.

Depression? Hemp D9 has shown to greatly help with depression and PTSD

Great news for those suffering from conditions such as sleep apnea!

Hemp D-9 Provides Stress and Anxiety Relief

Stress and Anxiety relief is one of the top medical benefits of Hemp CBD + Delta 9 THC

More than 220 Million people in the U.S. suffer from a daily stress event and anxiety event.

Promotes Brain Growth

Believe it or not, Not only does the psychoactive protect brain cells, it also stimulates brain growth.

THC activates the “CB1 receptor” in our brains. This stimulation promotes a process known as long-term potentiation which improves the brain’s ability to learn.

Scientists also discovered that like CBD, THC causes brain cells in the hippocampus to grow.

This is why small doses of cannabis can treat or even slow down diseases such as Alzheimer’s. THC can also help protect against Alzheimer’s in other ways, too.

ECS Health & Hemp D-9

What is the Endocannabinoid System?

An astonishing fact is that our bodies actually produce chemicals similar to ones in the cannabis plant, called endocannabinoids.

The endocannabinoid system (ECS) is a unique communications system that is very extensive and elaborate.

It consists of three main components: endocannabinoids, cannabinoid receptors, and the enzymes that break the cannabinoids down. The ECS exists throughout our bodies. For example, it's on immune cells in our bloodstream, all over our nervous system, on the entire axis of the spinal cord, and in virtually every cell in the brain. There are even cannabinoid receptors in our skin.

The role of the endocannabinoid system is to keep our bodies in a state of complete balance called homeostasis. When we achieve internal homeostasis, we experience peak health. The ECS system regulates pain, stress, appetite, energy, cardiovascular function, reward perception, reproduction, and sleep, to name a few.

For today, the FDA regulates the amount of delta 9 THC that is allowed within any type of CBD product, CBD oil, or CBD topical solutions, which is 0.3 percent. There is a currently active bill called the Hemp Advancement Act of 2022, which, if passed by Congress, could increase this amount to 1 percent.

If you want to read about specific scientific studies for THC research, CBD research, or any other topic, go to the Google Scholar search page and perform a search. Include the particular cannabinoid of interest or use a more general search such as “CBD and _____” or Delta 9 and _____.
